

Inadequate access to services

Despite relatively high levels of service provision in Gauteng compared to other areas in South Africa, coverage of sanitation, water supply and stormwater infrastructure is incomplete. According to GCRO's Quality of Life IV Survey, Johannesburg is relatively better served than the other two metropolitan municipalities (Tshwane and Ekurhuleni), particularly with respect to stormwater infrastructure. With the exception of Emfuleni and Lesedi, the local municipalities reflect poorer access to water and sanitation services than the three metropolitan municipalities. Of particular concern is the inadequate provision in Rand West and Midvaal.
